The Barbara Giordano Foundation Helps Texas Women Veterans
Local Foundation secures funds and clothing donations for Texas nonprofit, Grace After Fire

WHITE PLAINS, NY - The Barbara Giordano Foundation is raising funds and securing donations for Texas nonprofit, Grace After Fire, a local organization with a mission to provide the means for women veterans to gain knowledge, insight and self-renewal. The state of Texas has one of the largest populations of women veterans. Many are single mothers who have been displaced with their children or who have lost their homes due to the storm. Grace After Fire offers them and their families hope and on-the-ground direct assistance.

“Unfortunately, some of the women Veterans we serve have been impacted by the storm of losing everything in the flood- including their clothes. We want to offer them hope and a place where they can come to replace just a little bit of what they have lost. . . . I can't thank you enough for your thoughtfulness in support of Texas and the women Veterans we serve.” Mea Williams, US Navy Veteran, President and CEO, Grace After Fire, 2929 McKinney Street Houston, TX 77003

Donations of clothing (everyday clothing for women, all sizes) and toiletries can be sent directly to Grace After Fire at the address above.

“The Barbara Giordano Foundation is honored to be able to assist Grace After Fire. We believe that local community organizations complement the resources provided by government, reducing both barriers to access and stigma for those who need and use services. The unique character of each community is also recognized, allowing a tailored system that meets the needs in that particular place and time,” said Virginia Giordano, Board Chair

Monetary donations will be accepted throughout the month of September with all proceeds, less bank fees, going directly to Grace After Fire. To donate call 914-686-8002 or visit the Foundation's crowdfunding page at: <https://give.classy.org/help/texas/women/veterans>.

With Hurricane Irma now impacting Florida, the Barbara Giordano Foundation will seek to partner with a local organization there in the coming weeks to provide the same kind of help to Florida women veterans.
